How Animals Use Their Tails

Many animals have tails, and (1) animals use their tails in different ways. The squirrel uses (2) the squirrel's tail to help it balance in the treetops. Crocodiles use their spiked tails to help (3) crocodiles swim through the water. (4) Crocodiles' tails also help them to knock small animals into water where they can be easily captured. A mother rabbit's tiny white tail guides (5) the mother rabbit's babies, or kits, through bushes and tall grasses. (6) The mother rabbit will lead her kits back to the safety of the burrow. The male peacock uses (7) the male peacock's tail feathers to attract a female. (8) The male peacock will spread his colorful feathers and parade in front of a female peacock. The beaver has a flat tail. (9) The beaver uses its tail to pat down mud to make its home.

LESSON 9

Introduction to Poem Memorization: “The Land of Nod”

The Land of Nod

by Robert Louis Stevenson

From breakfast on through all the day
At home among my friends I stay;
But every night I go abroad
Afar into the land of Nod.

All by myself I have to go,
With none to tell me what to do—
All alone beside the streams
And up the mountainsides of dreams.

The strangest things are there for me,
Both things to eat and things to see,
And many frightening sights abroad
Till morning in the land of Nod.

Try as I like to find the way,
I never can get back by day,
Nor can remember plain and clear
The curious music that I hear.

(This lesson continues on the next page.)

Exercise 3

Verbs

by Eleanor Farjeon

Nouns are things I see and touch,
My cake, my mother, and my ball;
I like some nouns very much,
Though some I do not like at all.

Verbs are the things I do, and make,
And feel, in one way or another.
Thanks to verbs, I eat my cake,
And throw my ball, and hug my mother.

Yet verbs, which make me laugh and play,
Can also make me cry and fall,
And tease my mother every day,
And spoil my cake, and lose my ball!

LESSON 12

Introduction to Narration: “Bats”

Bats

Bats are very strange little animals, having hair like mice, and wings like birds. During the day, they live in cracks of rocks, in caves, and in other dark places.

At night, they go forth in search of food; and no doubt, you have seen them flying about, catching such insects as happen to be out rather late at night.

The wings of a bat have no feathers. They are only thin pieces of skin stretched upon a framework of bones. Besides this, it may be said that while he is a quadruped, he can rise into the air and fly from place to place like a bird.

(This lesson continues on the next page.)

Bats

LESSON 18

Poem Memorization: “A Tragic Story”

A Tragic Story

by William Makepeace Thackeray

There lived a sage in days of yore,
And he a handsome pigtail wore;
But wondered much and sorrowed more,
Because it hung behind him.

He mused upon the curious case,
And swore he'd change the pigtail's place,
And have it hanging at his face,
Not dangling there behind him.

Says he, “The mystery I've found—
I'll turn me round”—he turned him round;
But still it hung behind him.

Then round and round, and out and in,
All day the puzzled sage did spin;
In vain—it mattered not a pin—
The pigtail hung behind him.

And right and left, and round about,
And up and down, and in and out,
He turned; but still the pigtail stout
Hung steadily behind him.

And though his efforts never slack,
And though he twist, and twirl, and tack,
Alas! still faithful to his back,
The pigtail hangs behind him.

Narration: “The Mongols”

The Mongols

The Mongols came from the wild, cold mountains north of China. They lived in felt tents which they took down each morning, leaving nothing but ashes behind. They were nomads who swept over the countryside, conquering and killing. The bone-chilling cold of the north didn't stop them; they wore furs and leather and rubbed their skin with grease to keep the wind away. They never settled down and grew crops; instead they ate foxes, rabbits, and other small wild creatures. But they could go without food for days at a time. If they were in danger of starving, they would open the veins of their horses, drink some blood, and then close the vein and ride on.

Jane Addams started a program in 1889 to help people who had come to live in America from other countries. Newcomers came to live at a mansion called Hull House where they could study, learn crafts and skills, and live in a safe, healthy place. Although Jane Addams helped all kinds of people, she particularly cared for children and women.

This image shows a full page of handwriting practice paper. It features four identical sets of horizontal guidelines arranged vertically. Each set includes three lines: a solid black top line, a dashed grey midline, and a solid black bottom line. The sets are separated by small gaps, providing ample space for practicing letter formation and alignment. The entire page is white and contains no other markings or text.

Poem Memorization: “I Wandered Lonely As a Cloud”

I Wandered Lonely As a Cloud

by William Wordsworth

I wandered Lonely As a Cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils;

Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.
Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle in the milky way,

They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of the bay;
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

LESSON 36

Narration: “The Beaver Is a Builder”

The Beaver Is a Builder

Beavers build themselves most curious huts to live in, and quite frequently a great number of these huts are placed close together, like the buildings in a town. They always build their huts on the banks of rivers or lakes, for they swim much more easily than they walk, and prefer moving about in the water.

When they build on the bank of a running stream, they make a dam across the stream for the purpose of keeping the water at the height they want. These dams are chiefly of mud and stones, and the branches of trees. They are sometimes six or seven hundred feet in length.

Their huts are made of the same materials as the dams, and are round in shape. The walls are very thick, and the roofs are finished off with a thick layer of mud. They commence building their houses in the summer, but do not get them finished before the early frosts. The freezing makes them tighter and stronger.

And shout from where I am, What is it?
No, not as there is a time to talk.
I thrust my hoe in the mellow ground,
Blade-end up and five feet tall,
And plod: I go up to the stone wall
For a friendly visit.

LESSON 54

Narration: “Isaac Newton’s Laws of Gravity”

Isaac Newton’s Laws of Gravity

One day, Isaac Newton was sitting beside a window, thinking and staring out into the family apple orchards, when he saw an apple fall to the ground. He thought, “Why does it always fall down? Why doesn’t the apple ever fall sideways, or up? Some sort of force must be pulling on the apple to make it always fall in exactly the same way!”

Newton went on observing, doing experiments, and thinking until he was able to describe the force that pulls on the apple. He called it gravity, from the Latin word grave, which means “heavy.” This “heavy” force means that large bodies, such as the earth, have a force that pulls objects toward them. Isaac Newton learned that he could predict, using mathematics, how strong the force would be, anywhere in the universe. The next time an apple fell, Newton could tell you exactly how fast it would fall and when it would hit the earth.

Newton’s new rules, which we now call the laws of gravity, showed that every motion or action in the universe had a law that governed it. The universe wasn’t a huge, mysterious, magical riddle. Instead, people could figure it out—and even predict ahead of time—what would happen.

Poem Memorization: “The Bells”

The Bells

by Edgar Allan Poe

Hear the sledges with the bells—
Silver bells!
What a world of merriment their melody foretells!
How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,
In the icy air of night!
While the stars that oversprinkle
All the heavens, seem to twinkle
With a crystalline delight;
Keeping time, time, time,
In a sort of Runic rhyme,
To the tintinnabulation, that so musically wells
From the bells, bells, bells, bells,
Bells, bells, bells—
From the jingling and the tingling of the bells.

LESSON 66

Narration: “Spiders”

Spiders

Spiders are one of the marvels of the animal world and do not deserve the aversion and fear some persons feel for them. They are beneficial to mankind, for they destroy vast numbers of flies, mosquitoes, and other injurious insects; and since all but two harm neither human beings nor plants, they should not be killed.

Usually spiders have eight eyes on the front part of the head, although some species have one, two, or three pairs of eyes, and those living in caves are often entirely blind. The spider has a pair of jaws that are modified antennae; with these the prey is caught and poison is injected into the body, which is later mangled and the juices sucked out.

Narration: “Bull-Jumpers in Early Crete”

Bull-Jumpers in Early Crete

If you were a boy or girl in ancient Crete, you might find yourself part of a bull-jumping team! The Minoans, who lived on the island of Crete, trained athletic children to become bull-jumpers. The children learned the kind of gymnastics that children still learn today—somersaulting, balance exercises, tumbling, and vaulting. But instead of doing their vaulting over a piece of equipment, the students learned how to vault over the backs of small animals such as goats—and then finally were taught how to leap over the backs of bulls.

During bull-jumping festivals, people came from all over Crete to cheer for the bull-jumpers. Bull-jumpers were treated like royalty. They were given the best food and the nicest places to live. They were showered with presents of gold, jewelry, and beautiful clothes. But bull-jumping was a dangerous sport, because bull-jumpers were often killed by the bulls they were supposed to leap over. Few bull-jumpers lived past the age of twenty.

DEFINITIONS, RULES, AND LISTS

Definitions to Be Memorized

A noun is the name of a person, place, thing, or idea.

A pronoun is a word used in the place of a noun.

A verb is a word that does an action, shows a state of being, links two words together, or helps another verb.

An adjective is a word that describes a noun or pronoun. Adjectives tell what kind, which one, how many, and whose.

An adverb is a word that describes a verb, an adjective, or another adverb. Adverbs tell how, when, where, how often, and to what extent.

A preposition is a word that shows the relationship of a noun or pronoun to another word in the sentence.

A conjunction is a word that joins words or groups of words together.

An interjection is a word that expresses sudden or strong feeling.

A sentence is a group of words that expresses a complete thought. All sentences begin with a capital letter and end with a punctuation mark.

Glossary of Additional Terms to Know command – a sentence that gives an order or makes a request. A command sentence ends with either a period or an exclamation point.

complete predicate – the verb and other words that tell us what is said about the subject. It is the part of the sentence in which the verb is found.

complete subject – the simple subject and other words that tell us who or what the sentence is about. It is the part of the sentence in which the simple subject is found.

compound subject – a subject with two or more parts that are joined by a conjunction.

compound verb – two or more verbs that are joined by a conjunction and that have the same subject.

contraction – two words drawn together and shortened by dropping some letters. Every contraction has an apostrophe in it. The apostrophe tells us where the letters were dropped to form the contraction.

direct object – the noun or pronoun in the complete predicate that receives the action of the verb.

direct quotation – the exact words that someone says. Direct quotations are always enclosed by quotation marks.

exclamation – a sentence that shows sudden or strong feeling. An exclamation always ends with an exclamation point.

homonym – words that are spelled alike and pronounced alike but have different meanings.

indirect quotation – the content of what a person says without using his or her exact words. There are no quotation marks surrounding an indirect quotation.

predicate adjective – an adjective in the complete predicate that describes the subject.

predicate nominative – a noun or pronoun in the complete predicate that renames the subject.

question – a sentence that asks something. A question always ends with a question mark.

simple predicate – the main verb plus any helping verbs.

simple subject – the main word or term that tells us who or what the sentence is about.

statement – a sentence that gives information. Statements always end with a period.

types of sentences – The four different types of sentences are statements, commands, questions, and exclamations.

Summary of Rules

Forming Plurals

- Usually, add s to a noun to form the plural.
- Add es to nouns ending in s, sh, ch, x, or z.
- If a noun ends in y after a consonant, change the y to i and add es.
- If a noun ends in y after a vowel, just add s.

Commas in a Series

Put a comma after every item except the last one in the series.

Direct Address

Put a comma after the name or names of the people to whom you are speaking.

Direct Quotation That Comes at the End of a Sentence

- The exact words a person says are always enclosed by quotation marks.
- Direct quotations begin with a capital letter.
- The quotation is separated from the rest of the sentence by a comma.
- The end punctuation mark always comes inside the quotation marks.

Direct Quotation That Comes at the Beginning of a Sentence

- The exact words a person says are always enclosed by quotation marks.
- Direct quotations begin with a capital letter.
- If the direct quotation would normally end with a period, then the period is changed to a comma. This comma is always inside the quotation marks.
- If the direct quotation ends with a question mark or exclamation point, that mark is always inside the quotation marks.
- Since the direct quotation is only a part of the sentence, the larger sentence must have its own end mark.
